

Champion Resources

Champion Resources builds leadership skills and organizational accountability through management training and consulting. Operating since 1995, Champion Resources has worked with manufacturing and construction companies, delivery service and communication services organizations, health service groups and the First Nations. Its clients invest in their people to improve their functioning and develop a competitive edge.

About Terry Pringle

Terry has a background as an executive with national and international manufacturing organizations where his areas of expertise included: finance, strategic planning, and human resources. Since 1995, he has been assisting organizations with their development of leadership and teamwork, with workshops using "Accelerated Learning", a more effective method of changing behaviors and getting business results.

He has extensive provincial committee and Board experience in roles as executive and chairperson. Terry has been featured in the Globe and Mail for his advice to businesses on human resource management practices and travels throughout Canada speaking at conferences about "Bridging the Generation Gaps".
